Is the tank the weapon, or are your weapons the weapon, and if so why the singular naming for a plural set of objects? Is Heavy Weapon Deluxe really a screed about the division of self from society and how we are in truth a greater, unperceived whole, meaning our identity is beyond our control and indeed an artificial construct we bolt together piecemeal from the social experience of those with whom we identify? Dammit, Sartre, stop making me think and just give me Peggle 2 already.. Do you like weapons of mass destruction and just mindlessly blasting away enemies? Then this game is for you!. lazy developer for not including controller support making some stages a nightmare and impossible to complete, do not buy this game. It's good, but I wouldn't of played this if it wasn't theback when I was 6.. Better on the Xbox with two sticks:(this follow the curseris for the birds!. All Pop Cap's games are just perfect. Easy to learn, "plug & play" but, with increasing difficulty and clear instructions before every new thing to learn. Intense rythm, you are always clicking the mouse, no time to rest. Original, they can be based on anything else but they do their own way and with outstanding imagination. The right difficulty at the right time, to maintain the interest. Variated play modes. Ridiculous simple controls, usually just the mouse and their two buttons, some times the arrows pad is also needed but, that's all. Very good music and sound effects. Well, if you already played Zuma, you know what I mean but, they have other interesting titles and this is one of them. Highly recommeded for casual tmes, when you are in a hurry and want to play just a bit or, for that "in between big games" time.. Just a simple A for left movement and D for right movement, and mouse for aim would be perfect. But that is the only con I see from this game. Other than that I find it greatly enjoyable.. Yes, it's still the xbox arcade game that I love. But the mouse controls are terrible. And I don't feel comfortable using it unless I waste all my points on defence orbs.
