What does the world of art and culture look like? What are some ways you can explore this world without spending too much money? Where would you find inspiration on your travels which you could turn into pieces of artwork? A quick google search of any one of these questions will bring up millions of results. One such result, Tripura the three cities of Maya, offers viewers insight into Indian art and culture through a movie based on short stories by Rumi. The film's synopsis reads " Tripura is a story about three people who live in different worlds – a city dweller, a village folk and an artist – but resonate with each other's lives. The film reveals the unique aspect of art in each one of them, through different stories that touch upon the life, while exploring how Samsara (meaning 'a continuous cycle', the cycle of life) is broken into individual stages, called Ashramas." The three main protagonists are :- Radha, a modern girl working in Bangalore living in a rented room; Vinod, the son-in-law of his father's friend who is married to Radha's cousin; and Rumi, an artist. Each one of these protagonists has to overcome their own personal obstacles before they are able to start looking for solutions. The movie portrays how art can connect these individuals, while providing valuable insights into Indian culture. The movie stars Jacky, an Indian actor who is known for his work on Bollywood films. The film also stars Turkish actress Sena Sener, who has worked on movies such as "Eflatunya" and "Saklamba". The main language of the film is English with some Hindi and Tamil dialogs, which makes it easier for international viewers to understand the story. Highlighting the three cities in Tripura state in India, this movie was produced by an experienced group of professionals from India and Turkey with the help of some sponsorships. They have divided the filming in three parts and have put them together in a film afterwards. Radha, a young city girl, has been living in Bangalore for the past 2 years studying at the Indian Institute of Technology under a scholarship. He is introverted and stuck in her room. Her parents don't want her to stay in India because they want her to get married when she returns from college. Radha starts working as an assistant manager at a local bank after graduating from college. Meanwhile, she is caught between a relationship with one of her classmates and another guy who follows her wherever she goes. Vinod, a shy village boy from a small village in Tripura state starts his university studies in Bangalore. He wants to join a dance troupe of a famous music band called 'Aalok'. His parents want him to stay close to home and get married, which is not something that he wants, but he respects their decision. He also has feelings for Radha, but she doesn't seem too interested in him either way. Rumi is an artist who travels around the world from her home in Istanbul visiting various places of interest.
